The best website that I was looking is the because <http://www.toyota.com/landcruiser/>. I found that the information was accurate to the searcher, the information was relevant and answer all my question, they where balance the points to the reader there where no author that we can get the information about him, the manger of the Toyota company who publish the website, the domain of the website is dot com, the date and the time is appear at the top of the website and although the time in Tokyo, it is easy to read and get information this website such as the amount of money, power and when new car well publish, I think that website is easy to understand and easy to my vocabulary ,the graphic is easy because it is all about cars and famous people, there is few links and at this website and finally the more important is the sites is free.

The second website is the <http://www.off-road.com/> The information is not that much accurate an the information relents that no, answering to my question, the third <http://www.coolcruisers.com/>the information is have little analysis or criticism, the author is private could be anyone and how publish the is private individual, the domain name is dot org, the website is out of date and time, it is hard to read and grammical errors and misspelling ,it is illustration distract or hard to download and the referenced had few not that much there some distracting, there are free sites.
